

RNIB Tate House

Residential care for older people in
Harrogate, North Yorkshire

RNIB

supporting blind and partially sighted people

Welcome

Located in the historic spa town of Harrogate in North Yorkshire, RNIB Tate House provides a caring home for older people where independence, community and individuality really matter.

As a home from the UK's leading charity supporting blind and partially sighted people, everything you'll find at Tate House is designed to make life easier if you have difficulties with your sight.

Tate House can be your permanent home or somewhere you come for short stays when you need some respite. For those who want it, our home is a very social place with regular trips out and activities such as quizzes, newspaper readings and gardening.

Read more about Tate House in this leaflet, go online at rnib.org.uk/tatehouse or call us on 01423 88 69 27 to arrange a visit and talk through your options. We look forward to welcoming you.

Living at Tate House

At Tate House we know that staying independent, being part of a community and retaining your individuality really matter.

We have a range of accommodation options for you including single person rooms, studio flats and single person flats. All have en-suite bathrooms with a toilet, washbasin, bath or shower. You'll also find a call system, television point and private phone line available in every room. Although all meals and refreshments are provided each day, there are rooms with kitchenettes available including a fridge and cooker to make your own meals and snacks if you wish.

Your room is your space to make your own. Many people choose to bring their own furniture, favourite possessions and mementos to really create a place where they feel at home.

Whilst having your own space is important, there are also a number of shared social spaces including lounge areas, a dining room, a library and a mature garden where you can sit and enjoy the fresh Yorkshire Dales air. For a bit of added comfort we also have visiting hairdressers, chiropodists and beauty therapists as well as a hydrotherapy bath.

Short stays and breaks

If you're not ready to consider living with us permanently, or you need some respite from time to time, you can stay with us for short periods to suit your circumstances.

Those who live with us permanently also have the option to take holiday breaks at our other RNIB homes – Kathleen Chambers House in Burnham on Sea, Somerset and Wavertree House in Hove, East Sussex.

Supporting your sight loss

Whether you've been blind or partially sighted for many years, or have only begun to experience difficulties with your sight as you have got older, there are many things about Tate House designed to help

- specially trained staff experienced in supporting people with sight problems and/or hearing loss
- magnifying equipment
- braille embossers for creating your own braille documents
- recording booth if you prefer to listen to and keep information on audio
- a library of braille, moon, giant print and audio books and music
- access to audio described videos and films
- talking notice boards updated daily
- talking lifts
- hand rails
- tailored decor with contrasting colours, adjustable lighting and textured flooring.

Your leisure time

If you want to continue current hobbies, learn new pastimes, get together with others, go out and about, be active or prefer a more laid back approach to leisure, you'll find something to suit. Our social programme is put together with our residents not on behalf of them, so what we do is up to you.

I’m really part of a community, inside
and out”
